

Privacy Policy

Your privacy is important to us, so we've developed a policy that covers how we collect, store, use, transfer, and disclose your information. Please take some time to review our policy.

Collection and Use of Personal Information

Personal information is data that can be used to identify a single person. You may be asked to provide your personal information when you are in contact with eDiscovery Assistant LLC or to set up your account.

When visiting our website or using our mobile applications, we may collect information, including your name, mailing address, phone number, email address, contact preferences and credit card information.

We collect your personal information to keep you posted on our latest content and software updates. It also helps us to improve our services and content.

We may use your personal information to send important notices, such as communications about purchases and changes to our terms, conditions, and policies. So that you stay informed with this important information, you may not opt out of receiving this information.

Collection and Use of Non-Personal Information

We also collect non-personal information and data in a form that does not permit direct association with any specific individual. For example, we may collect information such as what jurisdiction you practice in and your role at your organization. We may collect or use non-personal information for any purpose.

We also may collect information regarding customer activities on our apps or website. This information is aggregated and used to help us provide more useful information to our customers and to understand which parts of our website and app are of most interest. Aggregated data is considered non-personal information for as long as it remains combined.

Disclosure to Third Parties

eDiscovery Assistant does not disclose or share information with third parties for purposes other than listed below.

Others

eDiscovery Assistant LLC may share or disclose your personal information when we need to protect our legal rights, when we have to comply with applicable laws, regulations or legal or regulatory
